	Lunch & Learn   Royally Wronged: The Royal Society of Canada and Indigenous Peoples
12:00 pm	In this discussion moderated by RSC College President Frank Deer, the editors of Royally Wronged: The Royal Society of Canada and Indigenous Peoples reflect upon the findings, aspirations and origins of the book in Cindy Blackstock's (FRSC) and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada's Calls to Action for institutional reckoning. Written primarily by current RSC members, Royally Wronged dives deep into the RSC's history to learn why academia has more often been an aid to colonialism than a force against it, posing difficult questions about what is required to move meaningfully toward a better future for Canada, for the RSC, and for other academic societies. Joining the conversatio is Coast Salish artist and lawyer Shain Jackson whose Golden Eagle Rising adorns the cover of the book.
